Klet Brda is the leading producer and exporter of Slovenian wine. The winery is located at the heart of Brda, the magical hilly land in the western part of Slovenia, nestled halfway between the Alps and the Adriatic Sea.

Klet Brda's story begins in 1957, when the winery was established as a cooperative. Today, the cooperative remains fully owned by 400 local winegrowing families, which help shape the life in the Brda region and produce some of the most renowned wines.

Wine tastings in Klet Brda wine cellar or the historic De Bager cellar will allow you to feel the pulse of Brda and broaden your wine horizons. You can try the wines individually or enjoy in one of their tasting packages with a guided winery tour.

Čarga

Čarga 1767, Pristavo 2, 5212 Dobrovo v Brdih.
www.carga.si, info@carga.si, +38670820546

The Čarga estate covers 25 hectares, over half of which is allocated to viticulture. Our geographical location is amongst the best in the Brda region. We try to find the most appropriate position for a single type of grapes, choose the right time for harvesting, and determine the best way of storing each sort of wine. We wish to express the terroir with somewhat more mature and distinctly dry wines, which are rich in minerals that come from “opoka”, the marly soil of the Brda region. Each harvest is different; each year has its own special characteristics. We do not wish to standardise the wines from different vintages, nonetheless we would like to produce each year the best wines as possible. This is our obligation to the Čarga 1767 trademark, to the Brda region and above all to ourselves; but also, to the customers who believe in our wines and us.

Čok

Plavje 6, 6281 Škoflje,
www.cok.si, info@cok.si, +386 31 323 252

For generations the Čok family has been producing fine wine and olive oil in the small hilltop town of Plavje near the Italian border. Their unique labels have always caught our eye, and are also indicative of the refreshing, elegant wines contained within the bottles. Preferring to keep production small and focused, two wines account for the majority of the output here, Malvasia and Refosco - both of which are typical of the region. The former is a straw-coloured white with a fresh bouquet reminiscent of apples, pears and acacia flowers, which makes an excellent accompaniment for seafood dish. The latter, also known as 'black wine' (črno vino) due to its intense deep colour, is known for its berry-like aroma and goes great with cured meats and grilled dishes.

Our farm is located on the southern side of the Milje hills in a small corner of Slovenian Istria - in the town of Ankaran. Our homestead, surrounded by beautiful Istrian vegetation, lies in the center of plantations. In addition to top-quality wine, we also produce olive oil and cherries, so there is never a shortage of work on the farm. Our dedication to work and the effort we put in, have contributed to many awards we have received.

We offer you the opportunity to taste all our different wines and at the same time experience the magic of the forest and visit our wine cellar. Advance notice of the visit is welcome.

Lah

Dutovlje 173, 6221 Dutovlje

FB: facebook.com/vinarstvolah, E-mail: vinarstvolah@gmail.com, +386 31 429 285

Lah winemaking, wine of the third generation, is the fruit of knowledge, perseverance and love for the land and tradition. The winemaker Peter (skala-rock) insists on the stony Kras and the Mediterranean climate on terra rosa land with viticulture and winemaking, which is reflected in the fruitiness and minerality in the wine. A special feature of the Kras terroir is that Teran wine is produced from Refošk vines. The offer includes wines with the recognized traditional denominations of Teran, Teran barrique, VTM (which is a white variety made from Gargania, Tokaj and Malvasia) and Rose from Refoško. The vineyards are on the south side of the village of Dutovlje, grown on a pergola, which is traditional for Kras.

Zoria

Podraga 84, 5272 Podnanos
posestvo.zoria@gmail.com, +386 30 676 808

Zoria estate is located in the upper Vipava valley, more precisely in the village of Podraga. The roots of the farm go all the way back to 1813, as indicated by the vintage in the cellar. The vineyards are located on the slopes of the “Vipava hills” where extreme locations, “Vipava bora” and our work give wines their unique taste. In the vineyard and cellar, we respect the knowledge of our ancestors, which we upgrade with modern ones. By understanding the characteristics of our vineyards, soil and microclimate, we adjust the varieties and the methods of work. With this we achieve that we get the most of what each variety and location has to offer. On our estate we produce from 1 year old fresh wines to matured ones which are known for its full-bodied character and freshness.

Gjerkeš

Fikšinci 49, 9262 Rogašovci

www.vina-gjerkes.com, office@gjerkes.com, +386(0)41 623 125

Surrounded by the lush green forests of the Goricko Nature Park, the Gjerkeš family estate lies just a few hundred metres from the Austrian border in the northwest corner of Slovenia's unique Prekmurje region. The vineyard primarily produces a range of excellent award-winning (Decanter, Chardonnay du Monde, AWC Vienna) whites, including Chardonnay, some fresh crisp Reislings and an excellent Yellow Muscat. However, our personal favourite is the copper tinted Pinot Grigio, one of the so-called orange wines that have become quite popular in Slovenia in recent years.

The Gjerkeš family has now added to its nearly century-old farmhouse with the construction of modern winery and tasting facilities, which can accommodate both large and small groups for tastings if reservations are made in advance.

Kušter-Šerbinek

Plaç 9, Svečina, 2201 Zg. Kungota

www.vino-kuster.com, info@vino-kuster.com, +386 31 565 146, +386 31 262 480

This family made its first appearance in the historical record more than five centuries ago, and they started to use their local name Kušter some 300 years ago. As both winegrowers and wine lovers they strive to grow ripe and rich wines and at the same time fresh and fruity ones. In their wine cellar they give the wine enough time to develop and mature in order to keep its aromatic flavour and to preserve a strong enough backbone that keeps the wine young. Their wines are kept in the wine barrels as long as possible and bottled just before the next vintage. They produce a wide variety of Styrian sorts and welcome visitors for tastings on their estate, which can be found just down the road from the famous vineyard heart road in the village of Svečina, a short drive north of Maribor.

Gaube

Špičnik 17, 2201 Zg. Kungota,

www.vino-gaube.si, vinarstvo.gaube@siol.net, +386 41 747 151, +386 41 526 511

If you haven't heard of the Gaube winery, you've still likely seen photos of their vineyards, as the estate is located along the famous heart-shaped wine road in Štajerska that has adorned various book, brochure and magazine covers over the years – after all, Slovenia is the only country in the world with the word 'love' in its name. For five generations the Gaube family has lovingly produced an assortment of excellent wines, building upon the endeavours and knowledge of their ancestors and working in harmony with nature to bring the best out of the land. Their efforts have been duly rewarded, as their wine acquired the title of world champion at the 2016 Vino Ljubljana wine fair, and visitors will also be duly rewarded with the wine tastings and culinary delicacies that await them.

Mulec

Ročica 40, 2222 Jakobski Dol

www.mulec.si, vino@mulec.si, +386 31 374 416, +386 31 596 440

You can find the family-run Mulec winery in the heart of Slovenske Gorice, only 15 km from Maribor. Their tradition of high-quality wine production dates back more than a century, and nowadays their five hectares of vineyards produce some 30,000 litres of wine, including a wide range of varieties. Among them, there are nine whites (our favourite of which is the house specialty Blanc de Noir - Pinot Noir), a Rosé and two reds. In the 150-year old wine cellar, you can also find ice harvests, dry berry selections, as well as red sparkling wine from Blue Pinot. In addition to guided wine tastings, the Mulec estate also boasts a bed and breakfast, which can accommodate up to 14 guests; small camp where you can stay with your camper, caravan or tent; a camper stop and grounds that are home to a herd of deer.

Wine Barrel Village

Sava Hotels & Resort – Terme Ptuj, Pot v toplice 9, 2250 Ptuj
www.sava-camping.com, info@terme-ptuj.si, +386 27 494 506

The Terme Ptuj Wine Village offers the unique experience of staying in large wine barrels, which look like something out of The Hobbit and offer almost all the comforts of a hotel room, while still being out in the open. In keeping with the rich tradition of wine-making in Ptuj, a number of barrels have been transformed into accommodation with the idea of creating an original tourist experience, an aim that has been achieved. The Village is a great place to settle in for a few days of wine tourism, with events connected to both local wine-making and Roman tradition often held on site, and the location being ideal for day trips to the area's many attractions, including the thermal delights of the local spas. Due to the small number of barrels, we recommend booking in advance.

Their vineyards are kept on the sunny hills of Dolenjska above green Krško Polje, where the Sava River lazily spills into its fertile plains. The love and care for this treasure of nature passed on from generation to generation, with new approaches in cultivation, yield top results. The story of the Frelih family's wine begins back in 1892, when great-grandfather Joseph Frelih moved from the Vipava valley to the town of Šentrupert in the heart of the Dolenjska region. He brought his love of winemaking and know-how with him from Primorska, and transformed a dying vineyard into a bountiful estate. Nowadays, the family-run Frelih winery continues and builds upon Joseph's legacy, delivering wines of the highest quality, including its award-winning sparkling wines, Blaufränkisch, Silvaner, Pinot Gris, Pinot Noir and the PTP-protected Cviček. The family's Zadruga vineyard is still found in the same enviable position above the Šentrupert valley, benefiting from the ideal growing environment, and all Frelih wines reflect the terroir in which the grapes are grown using a combination of hard work, innovation and natural approaches.

TOP FACTS ABOUT SLOVENIAN WINE AND WINEMAKERS

It's time for us to once again say 'Na zdravje!' to wine lovers the world over with the release of our latest English-language Slovenian wine guide, covering all three of the country's distinct wine regions (and their nine constituent districts). From the earthy reds of Mediterranean Primorska, to the sweet whites of Podravje in the northeast to the limitless supply of refreshing cviček of Posavje in the south-east, this map is intended to give only a brief overview of Slovenia's wine industry, one of the oldest in the world and yet still, for many, an unexplored scene.

TOP FACTS ABOUT SLOVENIAN WINE AND WINEMAKERS

- 80 - 90 million liters of wine per year with 30% of wine for self-supply
- 6,1 million liters of Slovenian wine is exported every year
- 500.000 euros - A prestigious bottle of Slovenian dessert wine has been sold for no less than half a million euros
- 27,500 winegrowers - Slovenia has around 28,400 winegrowers, 27,500 winegrowers and 2,500 wine cellars of which 11 are larger
- 14,900 hectares of registered vineyards. There is a vineyard or a winery for every 70 people in Slovenia
- 400 years - The oldest vine in the world resides in Maribor, where it has been growing for 400 years
- 160 years - In Gornja Radgona they have been producing sparkling wines for over 160 years
- 60 varieties - there are over 60 types of grape varieties that thrive in Slovenia and 7 native ones
- 70/30 - About 70% of Slovenia's production is white wine and 30% red wine

PRIMORSKA

Primorska (or the Slovenian Littoral, as it is sometimes translated in English) is the most developed, promoted and consequently well-known of Slovenia's three wine regions. It has a climate that benefits from its proximity to both the Mediterranean and the Alps, meaning the area is sometimes called the Slovenian California.

Goriška brda is one of Slovenia's foremost wine-growing areas, and only an hour's drive from Ljubljana. Often described as a miniature version of Tuscany, most of the vineyards are smaller family-run operations, and almost all offer some combination of wine tastings, tours, meals, accommodation and of course wine sales.

Vipavska Dolina Viticulture is, in fact, the main agricultural sector in this fertile valley. The small, family-based vineyards are mainly concentrated on terraces in the higher areas where the excellent soil allows both white and red varieties to be cultivated. Its unique location gives rise to five micro-regions and as many characteristic wines.

The Kras wine district is distinguished by the unique terrain upon which it sits, namely, a limestone Kras plateau above the bay of Trieste covered by a thin layer of reddish-brown soil that receives both an abundance of sun throughout the year, as well as strong wind known as the Burja. The end result is the perfect climate for growing a variety of grapes, especially those for making earthy red wines such as Refošk (Refosco) and Kraški Teran (Terrano).

Slovenska Istra (Istria) is the coastal part of the country, and has long been influenced by its proximity to the sea and Italy, with a tradition of winemaking that goes back to Roman times. While many different wines are produced here, the most typical of the region is Refošk. Other reds include Cabernet Franc, Cabernet Sauvignon and Merlot. The main white wine is Malvazija (Malvasia), which is said to be richer than that from other areas.

PODRAVJE

Covering the entire northeastern portion of the country, Podravje is officially subdivided into two districts: Prekmurje in the far north-eastern corner, and Štajerska Slovenija everywhere else. It should be mentioned that some guides divide the region into seven districts, with names bearing excessive hyphenation that can be quite confusing even for Slovenes, so for the sake of clarity we've decided to stick with the official designations.

The wines of Štajerska reflect the Germanic influence the region has often fallen under, so you'll find an abundance of Riesling here, under the names Laški rizling and Renski rizling, as well as Traminec (Gewurztraminer), Sauvignon and Šipon, a personal favourite of ours. The rich opoka soil is a blessing for winemakers, and also gives the district's wines their distinctive minerality. The vineyards around Jeruzalem and Radgonsko Kapelske Gorice are especially notable, with the latter famous for its penina (ie sparkling wines). When in the area don't miss the chance to visit the World's Oldest Vine in Maribor city centre, the only plant in the world with its own museum. There are many famous wine cellars in Štajerska, that are worth a visit.

Prekmurje is found in the far northeast corner of Slovenia, wedged between the borders with Austria, Hungary and Croatia, and much of the winemaking activity here takes places in the areas of Lendava and Goričko. The landscapes are quite breathtaking, with forests and rolling hills covering much of the countryside, while the pace of life is noticeably slower and more relaxed than most other places in the country. This district is notable for the number of younger winemakers trying new methods or rediscovering old ones.

POSAVJE

The Posavje region is most associated with the light, fresh and slightly sour cviček wine from the district of Dolenjska. The smaller districts of Bizeljsko-Sremic and Bela Krajina are located along different segments of the Croatian border, and are two of the more charming places to visit in Slovenia.

The historical region of Dolenjska (or Lower Carniola) covers the entire Posavje wine region, while the Dolenjska wine-growing district is more modest in size, it is still the third largest district in the country, after only Štajerska and Vipava. However, most producers here are small (even by Slovene standards) family-run operations, and sometimes it can seem as if every individual family has their own vineyard. When it comes to wine, Dolenjska is synonymous with one variety, namely Cviček, which is only one of two Slovene wines that boast official EU protection.

While Bizeljsko-Sremič may not be one of the country's more known or visited wine districts - in fact it might very well be the least known and least visited - it's not only one of our personal favourites, but is also a permanent fixture on any itinerary of Slovenia we prepare when family and friends visit from abroad. Modra Frankinja, Laški Rizling, Sauvignon and Chardonnay are the dominant varieties grown here, and there are a few award-winning producers, most notably the sparkling wines of Istenič. However, the reason we visit time and time again has less to do with the wine we drink and more to do with the incredible wealth of sights in the area and the friendly folks who operate them.

When you see the Bela Krajina wine-growing district on a map, you'd be forgiven for thinking that it's somewhat peculiar looking - as it mainly consists of the hills surrounding the town of Metlika along the border with Croatia, with a narrow strip of territory extending down through Semič and into the town of Črnomelj. The pride of the microclimate is the local blend known as Metliška Črnina, made from at least 60% Modra Frankinja (Blue Franconian) and 30% Žametna Črnina, which is a dry ruby-red that has a rich, velvety flavour.
